THE REPTILE ROOM BY NIGHT.

The following striking account of the reptile room in the Zoological gardens, Park, London, we take, with some abridgement, from Bently's Miscellany:

"About ten o'clock one evening during the last spring, in company with two naturalists of eminence, we entered that apartment. A small lantern was our only light, and the faint illumination of this imparted a ghastly character to the scene before us.—The clear plate glass which faces the cages was invisible, and it was difficult to believe that the monsters were in confinement, and the spectators secure. Those who have only seen the boas and pythons, the rattlesnakes and cobras, lazily hanging in festoons from the forks of the trees in the dens, sluggishly coiled up, can form no conception of the appearance and actions of the same creatures at night. The huge boas and pythons were chasing each other in every direction, whisking about the dens with the rapidity of lightning, sometimes clinging in huge coils round the branches, anon entwining each other in massive folds, then separating, they would rush over and under the branches, hissing and lashing their tails in hideous sport. Ever and anon, thirsty with their exertions, they would approach the pans of water and drink eagerly, lapping it with their forked tongues. As our eyes became accustomed to the darkness we perceived objects better; and on the uppermost branch of the tree, in the den of the biggest serpent, we perceived a pigeon quietly roosting, apparently indifferent alike to the turmoil which was going on around and to the vicinity of the monster whose meal it was soon to form. In the den of one of the smaller serpents was a little mouse, whose panting sides and fast beating heart showed that it at least disliked its company.

"During the time we were looking at these creatures all sorts of odd noise were heard. A strange scratching against the glass would be audible; it was the carniverous lizard endeavoring to inform us that it was a fast day with him, entirely contrary to his inclination. A sharp hiss would startle us from another quarter, and we stepped back involuntarily as the lantern revealed the inflated hood and threatening action of an angry cobra. Then a rattle snake would take umbrage, and, sounding an alarm, would make a stroke against the glass intended for our person.—The fixed gaze from the brilliant eyes of the huge python was more fascinating than pleasant, and the scene, taking it all together, more exciting than agreeable. Each of the spectators involuntarily stooped to make sure that his trousers were well strapped down; and, as if our nerves were jesting, a strange sensation would every now and then be felt, resembling the twining of a small snake about the legs. Just before leaving the house, a great door-beetle, which had flown in, attracted by the light, struck with some force against our right ear. Startled we were, for at the moment our impression was, that it was some member of the happy family around us who had favored us with a mark of his attention."

JUDGE HOPKINS, OF ALABAMA.—We have received from Mobile (says the New Orleans Picayune) a pamphlet copy of the speech of the Hon. Arthur F. Hopkins at the barbecue of "the friends both of the South and the Union," at Mobile, on the 8th of October.

It is a very able speech, and worthy of the fame of its author as one of the most able men and soundest lawyers in Alabama.—Although in party politics he has always been of the minority in Alabama, and living most of his life in the northern part of the State, where the Democratic vote is overwhelming, he never held any political station, he was so long as he chose the office, elected by Democratic Legislatures Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State. A Virginian by birth, his feelings, impulses, and interests are all unimpeachably Southern.

The whole of this speech is a powerful defence of the compromise bills of the late Congress, and an eloquent argument in favor of accepting them as an honorable adjusment of the slavery question. His conclusion is stated briefly "that there is not a decent pretext for any State to secede from the Union." This is pretty much the universal opinion in Louisiana, although one of our Senators thought that whoever entertains it ought to be extirpated as a "Yankee," or the victim of Yankee influence."

From the "Pet. Intelligencer."

VENABLE AND MILLER.

The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman in North Carolina to his friend in this city:

"Disunion has as yet found no quarter, and we trust never will, in the honest old North State. The first to raise the standard of resistance to British oppression, she will be the last to give up the Union purchased with the blood of so many martyrs to the cause of Liberty. Some of her representatives, however, such as Venable and Clingman, having mistaken the temper of her people, are assailing those wise meaures of Compromise recently passed by Congress, which have given peace to the country, and are thereby striking a seeret blow at the stability of the Union. But they will be rebuked, or I am no true prophet. On Tuesday last, (being the week of our County Court,) Mr. Venable addressed his constituents in opposition to the Compromise, (excepting the fugitive slave bill,) and then and there received a kind of foreshadowing, an earnest of what he has to expect at the hands of a misrepresented constituency at the next election. He commenced his speech by expressing his great attachment to the Union of the States—an attachment which was equalled only by his love for the voters of the 5th Congressional district. He took up and reviewed separately the measures of the Compromise above alluded to—condemned them in unmeasured terms, and poured out the vials of his mighty wrath upon the heads of Mr. Clay and other great statesmen who voted in opposition to him—denounced the present able and patriotic administration—said it was an abolition administration, and unworthy of the countenance and support of the Southern people. He, for one, preferred Disunion to disgrace—thought the South had been cruelly wronged, by the admission of California, and other measures of the Compromise, and endeavored, throughout his speech, we thought, to arouse feelings of animosity towards our Northern brethren, and to administer to that excitement which, not long since, had well nigh riven asunder the ligaments that bind together the States of the Republic into a great and glorious Union. We were forced to the conclusion, after hearing his speech, that he would not hesitate to raise the banner of Disunion, if he did not know that he would be condemned and repudiated by the people of his district.

"After Mr. Venable had concluded his speech, Henry W. Miller, Esq., (the true champion of Southern rights) took the stand, amid loud and repeated cheers from the audience, and chained them to him for about two hours with the most eloquent, forcible and sarcastic speech that it has ever been our pleasure to hear. It was a great intellectual effort; one that would lose nothing in comparison with the proudest efforts of the most gifted orators of our country. One by one did he take up the positions of Mr. Venable, and, stripping them of their gilded sophistry, scattered them broadcast to the winds of Heaven, and exposed them to the contempt of an enlightened constituency. Long will be remembered the writhing and contortions of Mr. V., as Miller hurled into his teeth the foul imputation of abolitionism he had endeavored to fix upon the administration.

"After he had overthrown and refuted the arguments and positions of his opponent, he alluded in an eloquent and happy style to the Union of the States. He knew the utter impossibility of calculating the value of the Union. He had not forgotten the privations and patriotism of those heroes who achieved our liberties and raised this proud fabric of government—the admiration of the world, and the hope of the friends of freedom throughout the earth. He could appreciate the blood that had been shed to cement together its constituent parts; he frowned with contempt and indignant scorn upon the craven spirit that would dare loosen one cord that bound it together.

Mr. Miller concluded his eloquent remarks with an allusion to the projected alliance of the Southern States with England; and never before have we seen the graces of rhetoric and oratory so happily blended with the higher powers of genius and logic; never have we seen the rod of sarcasm used with such withering effect as on this occasion. His speech will be long remembered by those who heard it, and by no one longer than Mr. Venable himself.

MR. CLAY'S SPEECH AT FRANKFORT.

The following letter from a member of the Kentucky Legislature, describing the scene and the effect of the speech, will be read with interest. We copy it from the Lexington, (Ky.) Observer:

FRANKFORT, Nov. 15, 1½ P. M.

D. C. WICKLIFFE, Esq.:

Dear Sir--The Legislature has just adjourned after listening to a speech of an hour and a half in length from Hon. Henry Clay.—You were made aware by the report of the Legislative proceedings of yesterday, that a resolution passed by the House was unanimously concurred in, inviting Mr. Clay to meet the General Assembly in the Hall of the House to-day, at 12 o'clock. In pursuance to that invitation, at the hour appointed, in the presence of an immense crowd, Mr. Clay was introduced by the Joint Committee of both Houses and received by the Speaker of the lower House in one of the most chaste, beautiful and patriotic addresses I ever heard. After the speaker had closed, Mr. Clay arose, evidently laboring under the greatest emotion. There was a silence of Tadmor in the Hall; breathing ceased, and the crowd presented the appearance of a great tableau of unmoving statues, with expectation depicted upon every countenance. After thanking the Speaker for the flattering address he had just made, and the Legislature for the high compliment intended to be paid him by their polite invitation to meet them, he proceeded to allude to, and discuss the late subjects of agitation in the country, embracing the measures contained in the Compromise. He took them up consecutively,—The admission of California, Utah, &c., the Texas boundary bill, the abolition of the slave trade in the District of Columbia, and the Fugitive Slave bill. Of all these questions he expressed the opinion that they were settled, definitely and permanently, and acquiesced in by the whole country, with, perhaps, the exception of the latter, with which so great dissatisfaction seemed in some places to be felt.

He pronounced a glowing and well deserved eulogium upon the character of President Fillmore, and expressed the opinion that the executive would enforce the Fugitive Slave law, calling if necessary any portion of the militia of the Union into service for that purpose. The compliment to Fillmore brought down the most enthusiastic applause from both Whigs and Democrats.

He alluded to the formation of a new party, saying that when the question of Union was at stake, all such measures of policy, as a Distribution of the proceeds of the public lands, an "Independent Treasury," &c., sunk into utter insignificance. The new party he denominated the "Union Party," and when he had mentioned it, with a tone and action I never can foget—elevating his proud old head—erecting his fine form, now somewhat bent, as the snow bends the pine—his eye beaming almost celestial fire, he rushed towards the Speaker's Chair, exclaiming, "I am a member of that Union party!" Words, unless they could literally burn, are no vehicles to paint that scene. Only those who enjoyed the pleasure of seeing it, can ever have any idea of its character.

I thought the most pathetic part of his effort was when disclaiming any desire for office, he wrapped his garments about him, and stepping proudly about he said, "I want no office; no place—ah yes," he exclaimed, "I do want a place, a place in your hearts." It was said so movingly—so sweetly—so pathetically, that his bitterest opponents seated immediately about, strong and cold men, "unused to the melting mood," wept like children.

I presume you will have a full report of the whole of this interesting proceeding; and as I am in great haste for fear the cars will leave before I find a bearer for this, I must close, assuring you that such an effort as that listened to to day has not fallen from the lips of any other man for years.

I met upon the street a moment after the adjournment a most violent democrat, who saluted me with the remark that Mr. Clay was incomparably the greatest of all men, and said that involuntarily, whilst he was speaking, he had pulled off his hat and shouted with more enthusiasm for him, than he ever had for Old Hickory.

In great haste, your friend,
ROB'T. A. ATHEY.

PREPARATIONS FOR CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22, 1850.

All the officers of the government are now busily engaged in preparing their Reports for Congress.

I believe, with Mr. Webster, that the Union is safe. Sectional Conventions may be held, "but they will vanish into thin air." The Fugitive Slave Law cannot be repealed. It would be a question of Union or Disunion—and the great body of the people mean to hold on to the Ark of Safety.

All alarm about the repeal of this law is idle. It will be executed in good faith, with here and there such exceptions as are unavoidable in all sections where popular sentiment is adverse.

The Union meeting at Philadelphia has taken proper ground. And the same spirit will soon be manifested in other parts of the country.

MORE SOUTH CAROLINA MUSTERING.—In the Charleston Mercury we find a correspondence between a rifle corps at Walterborough, attached to the 3d regiment of infantry, and Gov. Seabrook, of South Carolina. The soldiers tender their services to his Excellency should they be required to fight for Southern independence. They say they have "plenty of knapsacks, powder horns, flasks, belts and knives." Here is the Governor's reply:

Without hesitation, I accept the services of your company, in the firm belief that South Carolina should be prepared, at a moment's warning, for any emergency that may arise.

The people of the South occupy a perilous position—how they may be rescued from it is perhaps a question which the citizens soldier will have to answer.

THE SOUTHERN PRESS is out upon Judge Sharkey, in consequence of his cutting loose from the Nashville Convention. This is a matter of course. Judge Sharkey is as true to the South as ever he was—but he does not choose to advocate disunion.

REPUDIATION IN NORTH CAROLINA!

Our readers, and the public generally, will be astonished, and, we doubt not, mortified, to observe, by the report of yesterday's proceedings in the House of Commons, that a proposition was actually made by Mr. JOHN VICAR SHERARD, of the County of Wayne, to repudiate the plighted faith of the State, by the repeal of the Charter of the North Carolina Rail Road. What Mr. Sherard's motives were in pursuing this course, we are at a loss to conceive. If an ambition to distinguish himself was his aim, he has accomplished that object in a manner that should be a warning to all futuro aspirants after notoriety. The very decided vote by which the House "repudiated" his proposition, furnishes the best evidence of the measure of fame which he, and his compeers, have acquired, and the most gratifying indication of the estimate in which the honor and public faith of North Carolina are held, by her chosen representatives. It was, perhaps, the severest rebuke that demagogueism, in any shape, ever encountered before, as it was, undoubtedly, one of the most signal triumphs that intelligence and correct principles ever obtained over jesuitism and illiberality.

Publishing, as we do, a Daily journal, it is, of course, impossible for us to present, this morning, even an abstract of the highly interesting discussion to which this movement gave rise. It might e sufficient, indeed, for us to say, that the proposition encountered as it deserved, almost universal reprobation; for never, we learn, was there so general an expression of surprise and chagrin as it occasioned. Many of those gentlemen, even, who owed their election expressly to their opposition to further schemes of Internal Improvement, refused to co-operate in any such attempt to violate the credit of the State—actuated by those noble promptings which impelled the patriotic exclamation of a former member of our State Senate, from the County of Surry, (now dead)—"North Carolina is my Mother; take all that I have, but preserve her good name bright and untarnished!"

More, we are unable to say, to-day; less, we could not have said. We will endeavor, in our issue of to-morrow morning, to present a satisfactory epitome of the running debate; which was participated in by Messrs. Saunders, Brogden, McLean, Steele, Person, Winston, Cherry, Dargin, Pope, Clanton, Avery, Rayner, Barnes, and others.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Both Houses are still busily engaged in chalking out business for future legislation. An unusually large number of Bills, &c. have been referred to the appropriate Committees; and an unusual number of Select Committees have been designated. We anticipate a long, and, such is the nature of the many exciting issues to be met, a stormy session. We shall be "among them, takin' notes," and shall "prant them," sure.

ACTIONS VS. PROTESTATIONS.

ELEVEN TO ONE.

We would beg leave to draw attention to the fact, that, on the Resolution, (Fleming's) to instruct the Committee on amendments to the Constitution, to report a Bill proposing to leave it to THE PEOPLE to decide, whether a Convention to amend shall be called, out of twelve dissenting voices, in the House of Commons, eleven of them were from the ranks of the beloved people's devoted Democratic friends!!

☞ Congress convenes on Monday next. Among the members already arrived in Washington, we notice the name of our distinguished Senator, the Hon. WILLIE P. MANGUM.

BENTON'S MODESTY.

He begins his St. Louis Speech by speaking of "the war upon the Union and upon myself." He is evidently advancing in modesty as well as humanity, else he would have said "the war upon myself and upon the Union." We are afraid he is doing injustice to his own superlative merits, by giving the American Union precedence of Tom Benton.

INDUSTRIAL CONVENTION.

We are gratified to learn that there is a prospect of quite a respectable attendance at the Industrial Convention, proposed to be held in this City, on the 18th prox. It is the purpose, we are informed, of the several prosperous manufacturing establishments of Randolph, to send delegates and specimens. A gentleman of great intelligence in that County, writes us as follows:

CEDAR FALLS, Nov. 24th, 1850.

"It is much to be hoped, that there will be a general attendance of those interested in the Manufacturing, Mechanical and Mining operations throughout the State—aye of the disciples of Faust, too; for the very attrition of such assemblages may produce some sparks of beneficent light, which are sure to be caught up by the "Melissus" of the Press, and diffused throughout the land And then the plodding, matter of fact manufacturers will much need the assistance of these men of letters, in shaping and dressing up their home-spun ideas, in a style and garb fit for public exhibition.

I hope to be with you; for, independent of my interests as a manufacturer, I feel a far deeper one in the general welfare, with which the individual interests of each of us is involved.

Yours truly,

STATE LEGISLATURE.

THE EMISSARY THOMPSON.

A New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin says it is currently stated and believed in New York that Thompson has an annuity of a thousand dollars a year from the British Government, and is indirectly employed by that government to foment a civil disturbance in the United States.

RALEIGH REGISTER.—This veteran newspaper, "bequeathed from sire to son," and to grandson, has made its appearance as a Daily paper. It is small; but in these days the merits of newspapers do not depend upon their size. It is a very neat sheet, and exhibits a very commendable degree of enterprize, which we hope to see rewarded.—Richmond Dispatch.

Among the audience at Jenny Lind's concert, in New York, on Tuesday last, was the SECRETARY OF STATE, attended by a small party of friends. At the close of the first part there were cries for "DANIEL WEBSTER!" and the audience immediately rose. Three cheers were proposed and given. Mr. WEBSTER rose and bowed from the centre of the first dress circle. Three more cheers were given for "Daniel Webster," and all were given most heartily and unanimously. Then three more were proposed and given "for the Union," with the same enthusiasm, every body standing, cheering, waving hats and handkerchiefs, in which last demonstration the ladies joined most cordially.

AN UNEQUAL MATCH.—"We never saw a more forcible exemplification of the 'sublime and ridiculous' than we witnesed to-day, while standing on the railroad bridge at Yorkville, watching the approach of a train from the city. Onward came the fiery dragon of steam, with snort, and rumble, and roar, while a country dog, on the bank near by, was watching it with a dilating eye. As it neared, he gave a short quick bark, and 'went forth to meet the foe.' He rushed down the bank, and as if he were merely seizing a vagrant pig, was about to take the locomotive by the ear, when we heard a single scream, like the top note of a fiddle, and then all was still. The train swept on, and while we were thinking, 'supposing it had been a man!' there came limping slowly up the bank our four-footed brave. When he reached the bridge, he looked after the train flitting into distance, and said, in as plain English as ever a dog spoke in the world, 'I am afraid I made a little mistake in challenging that fellow; I didn't exactly know his breed.' And after licking his forefoot he limped away, a 'sadder and wiser' dog"—KNICKERBOCKER.

☞ An editor received a letter in which weather was spelled, "wethur." He said it was the worst spell of weather he had ever seen.

"WHOEVER DARE THESE 'BOOTS' DISPLACE, MUST MEET BOMBASTES, FACE TO FACE."

Alfred Mitchell, alias "BOOTS," for short, and by way of dignity, respectfully informs his numerous customers, that he has recently fitted up his Establishment, in the best style, and is now thoroughly prepared to carry on his business as BARBER, just "as it used to was," with the exception that he thinks he has improved by practice both in skill and manners.

The Members of the approaching Legislature, and my old customers especially, of that body, will always find me ready to shave, and trim hair, in the quickest, easiest, and most fashionable manner; and if any should prefer the old fashoin, "Boots" will be entirely agreeable, and conform to the tastes and wishes of his customers.

MUCH has been said in Congress, by Southern members, about the rights of the South—This community and surrounding country now have an opportunity of patronizing their own merchants and those who make up gentlemen's wearing apparel, by calling at the Proprietor's new Establishment, opposite the Post office.

The Proprietor, having made the SCIENCE of cutting Gentlemen's fashionable clothing his study, in the most fashionable Cities, for many years, is now prepared to give satisfaction to all who may want their clothing made. Gentlemen furnishing cloth and trimmings, will thus give employment to many in the City of Raleigh.

Those who only wish their garments cut shall have them warranted to fit, and at moderate prices. Gentlemen's garments altered and repaired at the shortest notice.

The New York and Philadelphia Fashions for the Fall and Winter just received.

WANTED, immediately, two first-rate Coatmakers, to whom the highest wages will be given.

L. B. WALKER.

The "Bug" also at Home again.

I HAVE just returned the second time from Boston, N. York, and Philadelphia, having spent nearly all of August and September in said Cities, getting up our CLOTHING, every article of which was cut by himself, and made up under my own inspection; and I presume there is no one in North Carolina now, who would be verdant enough to question my capacity after the eloquent tribute paid to my 'artistic skill, in our last Superior Court, by Judge, Counsel on both sides, witnesses and Jurors. I refer to the case of "Biggs vs. Oliver"—action for damages, in which I had to pay $250, in consequence of my extended reputation.

Come in, if you please, and assist me in paying off the judgment by buying our goods. Who is there in North Carolina, who has not heard of the Hon. George E. Badger, the Hon. Wm. H. Haywood, Jr., and 'Bug' Oliver, Why 'their fame is no more to be hemmed in by State lines than their talents are to be circumscribed within the same narrow limits.'

We are connected, as all our customers know—and if they don't know it, they may—with no Northern House—but we are Tailors ourselves—buy our own goods, and import quite as many of what we purchase in proportion to our business, as any house in this State or out of it. There is no establishment here or elsewhere that possesses any advantage over us. We buy where every body else buys, and we think we understand our business and buy as cheaply. We say our clothing is equal to any offered for sale in North Carolina, and, we think superior, being Judges ourselves of clothing. Of that though, we will leave the public to decide, when they examine for themselves. One thing is certain—without intending to reflect upon any one—we will sell our clothing cheaper than the same articles can be bought for in any of the Northern Cities, and as cheap as any body that comes here, who does not steal his clothing ready made

Our stock embracing Drab, Black, Blue, Green, Gray, and other OVERCOATS from 6 to $20 and upwards. Cloaks, full circle, $18 upwards. Frock, dress, and Sack COATS from 7to$12 and upwards. PANTALOONS, all colors and prices, from $4 to $8. VESTS, all kinds and all sizes, at all prices from $1,25 to $5. In fact, every thing that can be found in any similar establishment in the Union.

We are North Carolinians. We are permanently located here, and if we sell as cheap as others, why not give us the preference? If we do not sell as good goods at as small a price, we will not ask your patronage.

L. B. WALKER,

HARD to beat for the accommodation of the citizens of Raleigh, would say that he has in his employ two as good workmen as can be procured anywhere. He has been at considerable expense in the Baking business, and will do all in his power to give satisfaction. It is with the citizens to say, whether or not a Bakery should be supported. At any rate, he will give the business a fair trial this Winter.
